

Who will winter my immortality

Who will winter my immortality

with me? Who will thaw with me?

Come what may, I shall never trade

the earthly love for the subterranean.

I still have time to turn into flowers, clay, white-eyed memory...

But while we are mortal, my love, to you nothing will be denied.

by Vera Pavlova

Translated from the Russian by Steven Seymour